Nick Cannon Spins for His 34th Birthday at Drai's Nightclub

Superstar rapper Nick Cannon celebrated his 34th birthday with a special deejay set at Drai's Nightclub on the rooftop of The Cromwell over the weekend.

Cannon arrived at Drai's with friends wearing an all black ensemble complete with an edgy detailed leather jacket and a set of heavy chains around his neck. He posed for photos and interacted with the crowd of fans who were ready to celebrate the multi-talented star's birthday.

Inside Drai's, the group sat at one of the venue's tables located on stage next to the deejay booth. When Cannon took to the turntable, the crowd erupted in applause and everyone soon found themselves under command of Cannon's mix for the rest of the night, a mixture of new and old hip hop. At one point, Cannon got so caught up in the music that jumped on top of the deejay booth to show off his dance moves and the entire club cheered him on.

All eyes were on Cannon as a three-tiered birthday cake made its way through the club and into the DJ booth. Surprised by the monstrous dessert, he took a few moments to appreciate the gesture before getting back to his set. For the remainder of the evening, Cannon was a constant source of energy for everyone who came to party with him 11 stories above the Strip.

At the end of his set, Cannon began to thank everyone for coming out to celebrate when the entire club started to cheer as a show of their own appreciation for the entertainment luminary. He assembled his group for a round of drinks at their VIP table before calling it a wrap and heading to his Parlour Suite at The Cromwell to end what was indisputably an "only in Vegas" kind of night.
